

HealthLink North County is a school-health focused public/private partnership to improve health and education outcomes for North San Diego County's school children. HealthLink North County has been working to achieve this goal through the promotion of coordinated school health for over a decade!

Partners include school nurses, community clinics, mental health providers, local and countywide community-based programs, public health nurses and County Health and Human Services Agency staff.

Activities include bi-monthly meetings featuring informational presentations, opportunities for networking and resource sharing, and an email communication list of over 200 participants.
