Residential Sites Inventory—Existing General Plan and Zoning

Because of the schedule of the General Plan update (anticipated adoption in 2009), certain residential sites that would permit multi-family higher density development may not be available for development under the existing General Plan and zoning at the higher densities proposed in the General Plan update. Accordingly, the sites inventory in this Appendix (H1B) demonstrates the County's continued ability to accommodate multi-family development until the General Plan is adopted. Table H1-2 below summarizes the residential development capacity on these sites which are detailed in the following matrix and supporting maps. These sites will be rezoned to residential with adoption of the General Plan Update.

The Residential Sites inventory for the Existing General plan also includes sites that are zoned for general commercial, residential and office uses, which allow residential uses by right or as an accessory use. These sites do not account for over 50% of the Existing General Plan's inventory for Low and Very Low Income Households. The majority of the sites included are given the C31 Residential – Office Professional or C34 General Commercial-Residential Use Regulations in the County of San Diego's Zoning Ordinance, which allows residential development up to the density in the zone. The remainder of the sites are designated C36 General Commercial in the zoning ordinance, which allow residential as an accessory use at 40 dwelling units per acre. This was calculated using half the site, at 80% yield and only contained with on properties greater than one acre.

SOURCE: County of San Diego Department of Planning and Land Use, July 2009.

Residential capacity is estimated at 80 percent of the maximum densities permitted. The County will establish a policy in the general plan update to encourage development of multi-family land at 80 percent or more of the maximum densities permitted.

a. Commercial General Plan designations allow for residential development in residential zone RV and commercial zones C31 or C34, as a primary use at the stated density. Residential development also is allowed as a secondary use in C36.

b. Density Based on Existing Zoning

c. Potential Units Based on 80% yield of the density allowed by zoning. The two exceptions are; Specific Plan Area F2-1, which is based upon units allowed by the Specific Plan; and C36 sites which are counted as half the sites at 80% yield on the density allowed.
