

Tina Kafka taught elementary school for 14 years, before she finally graduated. Now she teaches writing and reading comprehension to adult students, who are working towards high school diplomas or GEDs. She writes nonfiction for middle to high school students. Tina's book "DNA on Trial" won the 2004 San Diego Book award for young adult nonfiction and her book "Cloning" was a 2008 runner-up for the same award. She enjoys the process of researching odd subjects that provide interesting topics of conversation.