

Native Californian Christie Ridgway is the author of over thirty contemporary romances for Silhouette, Harlequin, Avon, and Berkley Books. Her titles have appeared on the USAToday bestseller list, and both the Borders Group/Waldenbooks mass market and romance bestseller lists. She loves discussing the craft of storytelling and has spoken at local, regional, and national writers' conferences, and talked books with readers at libraries, bookstores, and book clubs.

Christie graduated with a degree in English Language and Literature from the University of California at Santa Barbara and worked as a technical writer and computer programmer before pursuing her dream of becoming a romance author.

She's currently working on her next trilogy for Berkley Books which is set in the Napa Valley and involves a failing winery and two feuding families.