

Linda Thomas-Sundstrom, an award-winning author of contemporary and historical paranormal romance novels, writes for Kensington Publishing, Dorchester Publishing, and Silhouette Nocturne. She writes in the fantasy genre, as well as both light and dark paranormal romance.

Linda lives in the West, juggling teaching for a major university, writing, family, and caring for a big stretch of land. She swears she has a resident Muse who sings so loudly, she virtually funds the Post-It Company with sticky notes full of scribbles on every available inch of house and car space. Eventually, Linda hopes to get to all those ideas

Linda's latest release is the light-hearted "Barbie & the Beast" from Dorchester's Love Spell imprint. She's also currently fulfilling a five book contract with Silhouette Nocturne for darker paranormal fare, and will have three or four books out in 2010.
