Lecture Series: Ronald K. Harlan Ph.D.

"A Biologist's Reflections on our Life"

A working biologist for thirty three years, Ron Harlan, is a retired biologist professor and was the Dean of Instructional Services at Glendale College.

His area of specialization is Ichthyology (fish biology). He has earned both a Masters at UC Santa Barbara and a Ph.D. from UCLA. And still finds time to make frequent trips to the Amazon where he collects exotic tropical fish for his personal collection. Dr. Harlan will look at our lifestyles through the lens of a professional biologist using biological theories. Topics covered: the inevitable infidelity of powerful men, distribution of body fat, hemorrhoids, and the world's real problems. He asks for your tolerance and give your appreciation of a clear bias based in the biological sciences.
