C. Non-Agenda Public Comment

Individuals can address the Board on topics within its jurisdiction that are not on the open session agenda, including items that may be considered in Closed Session. Pursuant to the Board of Supervisors' Rules of Procedure, Rule 4(a)(8), the first ten (10) speakers will be heard at the beginning of the meeting (five individuals in person, five individuals by phone). The remaining speakers will be heard at the conclusion of the General Legislative Session.

Purita Javier spoke regarding alleged hazardous emissions from a ceramics and battery kiln near her residence, asserting violations of air quality rules and difficulties obtaining enforcement.

Cesar Javier spoke regarding alleged hazardous emissions from a ceramics and battery kiln near his residence, asserting violations of air quality rules and difficulties obtaining enforcement, and later continued by describing efforts at non-violent protest, his restraining order experience, and a desire for justice for neighbors affected by pollution.

Marco Espinosa raised concerns about the completeness and accuracy of video recordings of the June 9, 2025 Board meeting, stating that he remembered remarks by Chair Lawson-Remer regarding nationalization of the California National Guard that did not appear in the archived video, and questioning attendance records for a subsequent 4:00 p.m. meeting.

Allegedly Audra objected to the Board's decision not to hold non-agenda public comment during the October 28, 2026 Land Use session, asserting that removal of such comment limit opportunities for the public to address all items and alleging that restrictions on closed session public comment violate constitutional and statutory requirements.

Paul the Bold criticized new Board public comment rules as censorship, referencing remarks by the United Nations Secretary-General about corporate influence and artificial intelligence, and expressing concern about governmental power and worker representation.

Consuelo C. characterized Board actions as abusive and above the law, citing long-standing Tijuana River sewage issues and alleging prioritization of global agendas over local community needs.

Barbara Gordon summarized research concerning parental cannabis use, noting associations with reduced supervision and child safety risks, and urging stronger county public health messaging to protect children from normalization of marijuana use.

Madison spoke in recognition of Red Ribbon Week, emphasizing that substance use prevention relies on strong family relationships and supportive adult connections, and urging investment in youth prevention and mental health services to build resilience and connectedness.

David Kronsburg alleged psychiatric abuse at a local hospital, describing a personal experience of sleep deprivation during treatment, and urging county attention to protect vulnerable patients from mistreatment.

Peggy Walker expressed concerns regarding the county's socially equitable cannabis program, citing declining cannabis tax revenues, business struggles, and environmental impact findings, and questioning the economic justification for program expansion.

Oliver Twist criticized the format and cost of the State of the County Address, expressing concern that invitation-only aspects and donor recognition limit meaningful public participation, and objecting to what she characterized as growing control over public dissent.

Becky Rapp questioned the removal of non-agenda public comment from the Land Use agenda, emphasizing the importance of public input on land use decisions including cannabis business siting and environmental impacts, and noting that equity initiatives should not reduce opportunities for public challenge or scrutiny.

Terri-Ann Skelly spoke about Red Ribbon Week, urging the County to send clear preventive messages to youth against substance use and opposing placement of marijuana businesses and advertising in unincorporated neighborhoods, which she believes threatens youth wellbeing and parental efforts.

Kathleen Lippitt spoke regarding sobriety standards and harm reduction, criticizing policies that she believes undermine prevention efforts and increase homelessness and addiction, and urging the Board to prioritize sober living environments and youth protection over expansion of vice industries such as gambling, alcohol, tobacco, and marijuana.

Ann Riddle expressed concerns that the elimination of non-agenda public comment at Land Use sessions discriminates against residents whose work schedules limit participation, emphasizing the difficulty for parents and youth advocates in unincorporated areas to address multiple items, and reiterating worries about youth exposure to marijuana businesses in their communities.

Truth Tonix spoke referencing a cease-and-desist letter sent to the Board, citing text messages obtained via public records relating to agenda ordering and governance reform, criticizing the Chair's public communications and use of County resources, and alleging inaccuracies in predictive data used to support new public comment rules.
