3. Approval for the Statement of Proceeding/Minutes for the Meeting of July 18, 2025

Motion by Patty Boles, seconded by Dr. Kimberly Giardina. All members present voting 'aye'.

4. Healthy Outcomes from Positive Experience

Aimee Zeitz, Assistant Director, CFWB, opened the presentation with a review of Adverse Childhood Effects (ACEs). Traditional ACEs can be grouped into three types: Abuse, Neglect, and Household Challenges. An additional type of Other Adversity has since been added based on research in this field. One in five San Diegans report experiencing four or more ACEs before the age of 18. Four ACEs is the cutoff at which health and life expectancy are affected. The most prevalent types of ACEs in adults in San Diego County are Emotional Abuse (about 42%), Parental Separation or Divorce (about 33%), and Physical Abuse (about 27%). ACEs can be traced back to Adverse Community Environments such as food scarcity, poverty, substandard schools, violence, and poor housing among others.

Conversely, research on Positive Childhood Experiences (PCEs) (a seven-question scale regarding connection, belonging, and support) found that those with more PCEs had higher rates of income, employment, and college completion (National Behavior Risk Factors System Survey, unpublished). Californians with higher PCEs report less cigarette smoking, less alcohol consumption, lower rates of depression, and better overall health. Adults with limited PCEs (0-2) reported the highest rate of suicidal ideation (about 30%, for those with 6-7 PCEs suicidal ideation was about 7%). Furthermore, PCEs can reduce the effects of ACEs. In a 2019 study in JAMA Pediatrics, of those with more than four ACEs, those who also had 6-7 PCEs reported depression or poor mental health at 20% versus 60% for those who had 0-2 PCEs). This is good news as it is easier to ensure PCEs than prevent ACEs.

The HOPE (Healthy Outcomes from Positive Experiences) framework focuses on developing PCEs. HOPE allows responders to keep their actions free from judgment, build trust with families and communities, and help strengthen family and community well-being.

Next, Sarah Glass, Deputy Director at CFWB, presented how HOPE is being woven into CFWB. There are four building blocks of HOPE; Relationships, Environment, Engagement, and Emotional Growth. These building blocks are built into the Family Well-Being Plans used in prevention services. Building Block conversations include housing and food resources, afterschool and summer programs, community resources, and self-care exercises.

CFWB can affect the Relationships building block through safety networks, visitations, and SET values (SET, Safety Enhanced Together, is undergoing revisions to add in HOPE). The Environment building block can be affected through housing vouchers and safety assessments. Engagement can be strengthened through maintaining school of origin and eco maps. The Emotional Growth building block can be addressed through visitation and reunification assessments, parent partners, and independent living skills.

As part of implementation, there will be a CFWB specific cohort of Train the Facilitator. The HOPE National Resource Center will facilitate monthly 90-minute Community of Practice meetings for CFWB staff. Twelve HOPE Champions will be identified who will help create practice tools and train the broader community. Head Start has also been trained in HOPE. CFWB is the first child welfare organization nationally to integrate HOPE in this way.

A board member pointed out that on Child and Adolescent Needs and Strengths, a score of zero means that there is no concern in that area. In larger society, a zero score is often bad. Perhaps the CANS assessments could start with a PCE survey.

5. Health and Human Services Impacts of Federal and State Changes presented on the impacts of federal and state changes on health and human services.

Dr. Kimberly Giardina, Deputy Chief Administrative Officer, Health and Human Services Agency,

Most of the Federal changes to Medi-Cal will start in 2027. This delay could allow states to plan for the changes; however, no guidance has been issued. Medi-Cal will now have a work requirement and eligibility verification every six months (currently verification is done annually). Other states that have added work requirements and more robust documentation requirements tend to lose participants due to the additional burdens. The six-month eligibility checks will be expanded to those on an Affordable Care Act plan starting January 2027. Coverage for those with "Unsatisfactory Immigrant Status" (based on documentation as well as country) has been nearly eliminated starting in January 2026. Also starting in January 2026, asset limits will be re-instated for older adults and people with disabilities. The new asset limits will be $120,000 for an individual and $130,000 for a couple. Currently, individuals can get retroactive coverage for ninety days. Starting in January 2027, that will be shortened to one month. Many of these changes will affect behavioral health as the Federal matching assistance percentage is currently 90% but will be decreasing to 80%.

The CalFresh Health Living Program has been eliminated; however, the state gave counties one million dollars to wind down the program. These funds should last through the end of the year. April 2026 is the earliest someone would lose coverage in CalFresh (for able bodied adults with no dependents). Currently, the federal government pays 50% of CalFresh and California covers the other 50%, with the State paying 70% of that amount and the county covering 30%. Counties do pay the administrative share cost which will increase from 15% to 22%. The benefit cost is calculated on the state's error rate; California is at the maximum of 15%. It is unclear if that cost will be passed onto counties.

In San Diego, approximately 96,000 of the current 396,793 CalFresh customers will be impacted due to work requirements and approximately 13,000 will be affected by changes in immigrant coverage. Of the 876,069 San Diegans on Medi-Cal, approximately 327,000 will be impacted by the work requirement and 75,000 due to immigrant coverage.

The County is trying to prepare for these changes, but neither state nor federal guidance has been issued. Initial impacts will be increased food and housing insecurity and decreased access to health care. That often leads to decreased school and work attendance, increased health worker layoffs, and increased rates of unemployed, uninsured, and unhoused residents.

To mitigate some of these changes, the State has already approved $20m in food bank support, and a $71.2m special fund for reproductive health. San Diego has the benefit of LiveWell partners and philanthropy is leaning in.

The memo provided to the Board of Supervisors on July 22nd, 2025, is included in the materials packet.

The change in coverage for those with unsatisfactory immigrant status will not affect minors. Current and former foster youth will continue to be covered up to age 26. It is unclear what effect the work requirements may have on parents working toward reunification. Families will be under more stress, and we know that the most vulnerable communities will be the ones impacted the most.

Notifications about the changes that will take place in January have already gone out to affected individuals. The websites have also been updated. Individuals who have previously worked with the Legal Aid Society on CFWB grievances are being notified by that organization.

It is possible that enough advocacy could help undo some of the changes that go into effect further out. More town halls and community forums are being planned to help inform the community of the upcoming changes without causing fear. The YMCA is hosting a series to educate the community about CalAim.

6. Child and Family Strengthening Advisory Board Report

Sandra McBrayer, CEO of the Children's Initiative, discussed the report to the Board of Supervisors. The report begins with the origin of CFSAB, starting with Ordinance 10598 in March 2019. The duties of CFSAB and a description of the work groups are included in this section. The next section of the report provides data and information about the path through CFWB, from referral (most allegations are for general neglect), to open cases (San Diego has the lowest rate of children in out-of-home-care out of the five counties with the largest child populations), to placement with siblings and relatives, and reentry to foster care. The report then details our areas of focus, including reducing racial and ethnic disparities and increasing lived expert participation. The report will be submitted to the Board of Supervisors in December.

The report was included in the meeting materials. CFSAB Board Members were given until October 15th to email Torrey Giaquinta with any edits or suggestions.

7. Work Group Updates

a) Lived Experts Action Partners Work Group

Joseph Robinson, work group chair, discussed the recent change to a focus group format. The two focus groups that have been held had a good mix of current and former foster youth. Former foster youth included those who have recently left the system as well as those who are more removed from their time in care. Youth talked about the importance of being seen as more than their case file and the difference good social workers can make. Lived experts who had also had involvement with the juvenile justice system described not being visited by their case worker or caregiver while detained. Staff were reported as a positive or negative part of time in care depending on the worker. The importance of mentoring was also mentioned.

b) Placement and Caregiver Support Work Group

Jeff Wiemann and Patty Boles, co-chairs, provided an update from the August and September work group meetings. A draft child safety report, a report on substantiated abuse while in care, was asked for, however the data provided did not show any trends in age, placement type, allegation, or perpetrators.

Foster Family Agencies will soon be allowed to support kin caregivers. This will also allow kin caregivers to receive intensive services. Though respite care hours were reduced, caregivers are able to request additional hours. Some caregivers have reported not receiving notice of a court hearing. The process of how court notices are generated was covered.

c) Child and Family Well-Being Work Group

Torrey Giaquinta, from the Children's Initiative, presented for this work group as the chair was absent. Through the maps and gaps analysis process, multiple resources that were not widely known were identified. The difficulty of keeping resources up to date was raised leading to a presentation by 211.org on how they update the resources included in their system. This is primarily done through self-report.

In September, Carolyn Griesemer presented on her report commissioned by the Children's Advocacy Institute at University of San Diego on legal services in prevention. More families being diverted from the dependency system, begat the question of how and where those families can get legal services. The five primary areas for needed legal services were domestic violence restraining orders, probate guardianship, housing, unhoused youth, and pre-petition legal advocacy.

Board members inquired about the impact of CFSAB funding for probate guardianship and pre-petition legal advocacy. Board members were curious about who was the client being served in probate guardianships, the biological parents or the potential guardian.

Additionally, currently the contract for education support and guardianship are bundled, which a board member suggested could create conflicts.

8. Child and Family Well-Being Department, Director's Report

Alfredo Guardado, CFWB Director

a) Polinsky Children's Center Resident Information

The year-to-date data for children at the Polinsky Children's Center was shared. This year the average daily population is 21, higher than 19 in FY2024-2025 but much lower than the 59 children in FY 2021-2022.

b) Board Letters:

Alfredo Guardado discussed the three CFWB related letters that will be going to the Board of Supervisors.

- Funding allocation acceptance for the Transitional Housing Program, Housing Navigation and Maintenance Program, and the Transitional Housing Program Plus Housing Supplement Program (12/9/25)

This funding is for transitional housing for adults aged 18-25. The eleven counties in California with the highest rents (San Diego is one) receive additional funds for housing navigators.

- Request for Solicitation of Integrated Prevention and Early Intervention Services (11/4/25)

This letter is in regard to braided funds from First 5 and CFWB which will be used to support the continuum of care.

- Article IIIp Ordinance Amendment to the First 5 Commission of San Diego (11/4/25 and 11/18/25)

Some conflicting policies have been identified since First 5 came under CFWB. This letter clarifies the term of office.

9. Advisory Board Member Updates: Members may make brief announcements or report on their activities that are relevant to the Advisory Board

Judge Espa a recognized Dr. Giardina's commitment to the children, youth, and families of San Diego during her tenure at the County. Dr. Giardina was responsible for the shift to prevention and the reimagining of child welfare services as Child and Family Well-Being. Other Board Members added their appreciation for Dr. Giardina's vision, her efforts to improve this field, and her collaborations with partner agencies.

Dr. Giardina thanked the Board for their continued work in this area. She has known some of the Board Members since her days as a social worker and thanked them for the guidance, mentorship, and accountability they have provided over the decades.

10. Adjournment

Future meeting topics include data from the probate guardianship and pre-petition legal advocacy services contracts.

The next meeting is Friday, January 23, 2026; 9:00-11:00am

COUNTY OF SAN DIEGO Child and Family Strengthening Advisory Board

Lived Expert Action Partners Work Group

Meeting Summary

Date: Thursday, November 20, 2025

Chair: Joseph Robinson

Meeting Staff: Torrey Giaquinta

Attendees: 28, board members present: Joseph Robinson and Stephen Moore

1. Welcome and Overview

Joseph opened the meeting. All attendees introduced themselves. There were current and former foster youth present.

Joseph discussed the purpose of the meeting. Sticky notes are available for those who do not feel like talking.

2. Discussion

- Independent Living Services

Foster youth ages 16-18 have an assigned county ILS worker. After age 18, they are assigned a community ILS worker based on their location. The providers are SDYS, YMCA, and SBCS.

The discussion started with a show of hands of current foster youth who have bank accounts. Bank accounts can be hard to set up without a co-signer. All youth had identification.

Lived Experts were asked about the systems they have had difficulty accessing.

DMV- long wait times

Access to birth certificate, especially if out of state

Getting enough hours of driving on permit. Just in Time offers a three-session Changing Lanes course.

Employment – lived experts reported not receiving contact after a job application or interview.

Youth mentioned needing something to put on their resumes to demonstrate job skills. A few years ago, SD County offered paid internships to student workers. Sometimes if youth can find an internship, other organizations will provide funding.

Youth mentioned transportation as a problem. Buses break down or drive past youth which leads them to be late.

Next lived experts were asked what skills someone should have at 18.

Responses included cooking, shopping on a budget, recipes using EBT products.

Youth need to know more about credit at a younger age before they can get into trouble with credit cards and interest rates. They suggested ILS or CASA as the best person for this conversation.

Youth wanted a course on how to use tools to do minor projects in a home or a car.

There are currently monthly skill classes, however the titles are boring, and the staff are not enthusiastic. STRTP did not know about the meetings.

CFWB staff suggested having a specific ILS worker assigned to each facility. That will be the point of contact for all youth in that home and will liaise with CFWB and the community ILS worker.

Lived Experts wanted more frequent sessions with their ILS worker. Currently contact happens every two months, which is not sufficient if something needs to be done quickly.

Attendees asked if all ILS workers have a list of tasks to complete with each youth? Items would include obtaining ID/driver's license, setting up a bank account, writing a resume, going on college tours, and completing the FAFSA. Additional tasks could be how to get important papers or how to complete taxes.

3. Adjournment. Date of Next Meeting – December 18, 2025, 6:00pm.

The topic for the next meeting will be Independent Living Skills.

Agenda Item 7b

COUNTY OF SAN DIEGO

Child and Family Strengthening Advisory Board

Child and Family Well-Being Work Group

Meeting Summary

Date: Wednesday, November 19, 2025

Chair: Stephanie Ortega

Meeting Staff: Torrey Giaquinta

Attendees: 22, board members present: Stephanie Ortega, Stephen Moore, Jovanna Aguilera, and Erin Gospodarec.

1. Welcome and Introductions

Stephanie Ortega started the meeting. Attendees introduced themselves. Stephanie reviewed the agenda for the meeting as well as the work group's action plan.

2. Update on CalFresh Impacts

Sarah Glass, CFWB, spoke about the impact of the government closure on CalFresh. CFWB shared food resources with providers and warm line staff. Community Wraparound is giving away 1,000 turkeys. All One Safe Places have food pantries. CalFresh funds for November 1st -10th were distributed. In the East County, CFWB is working with Tribes to ensure needs are met.

3. Family Connection Hub Update

The Family Connection Hub was created to implement the 2018 Family First Prevention Services Act (FFPSA). In California, ten evidence based practices have been approved. San Diego is working to build capacity within the established programs with those practices. Motivational Interviewing is one of the evidence-based practices that has not yet been implemented. The State is putting out a large state contract for training on motivational interviewing. Adding motivational interviewing will make the Hub more sustainable under FFPSA funding.

Currently, families who had a CFWB investigation that was closed substantiated or inconclusive and who score as high risk for future involvement with child welfare¹ can be referred to the Family Connection Hub with the family's agreement. Families that are not eligible for FFPSA funding are referred to 211. Between January and November 15, 2025 188 families (262 children) were referred to the Hub. 149 of those families met FFPSA criteria, and the remaining 39 were referred to 211. FFPSA is child specific not family specific; it is possible that one child in a family may qualify for FFPSA but another does not.

Sarah reviewed the HUB budget. The Hub is able to provide concrete supports using Children's Trust Fund dollars (awarded by CFSAB). CFWB used 211 to determine what concrete needs were most needed. The Hub received $150,000 from the Office of Equity and Racial Justice to support boys and men of color. The proposed budget for the Hub increases every year to account for additional care navigators. Each navigator should have a maximum of 20 families they are serving. This is the last year of a three-year funding cycle for the Children's Trust Fund dollars.

The Community Response Guide pilot project agreement is in routing and should be completed soon. The pilot project will embed social workers in school sites.

4. Discussion

Chapin Hill is a good resource for articles on the benefit of concrete supports. Supporting families with concrete supports aligns with Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs.

There was a question regarding what outcome data are being tracked. Currently the outcomes are tied to system involvement and future system involvement. Families are repeatedly given a protective factors survey; the goal is to see increased resilience and the levels of protection over time. Families also complete a satisfaction survey regarding HUB services. Data collection is very challenging with the systems currently in place. A suggestion was made to look at the outcome differences in the families served by 211 versus those served by the Hub. The CARES, California child welfare database, is anticipated to roll out in October 2026 but will likely be delayed. At this time, CFWB does not know what that platform will look like and all staff will need training on data entry.

The Doris Duke Foundation is looking into the prevention work ecosystem. There was a plan to have UCSD conduct an evaluation but that plan fell through. Talks are now happening with SDSU.

CFWB is working on a larger implementation plan for HOPE/PCE and how to embed those in practice. SAY has used the Positive Childhood Effects (PCE) framework before and found it increases family engagement. Casey Family Programs paid for a train the trainers session with Tufts University staff on HOPE.

5. Announcements

There is a prevention convening on March 18th and 19th in San Diego. Those interested in attending can email Anneliese Martinez (annelise.martinez@sdcounty.ca.gov).

Meeting Summary

Date: Wednesday, December 17, 2025

Chair: Stephanie Ortega

Meeting Staff: Torrey Giaquinta

Attendees: 29, board members present: Stephanie Ortega, Stephen Moore, Jovanna Aguilera, Adam Reed, and Diana Venegas.

1. Welcome and Introductions

Stephanie Ortega started the meeting. Attendees introduced themselves. Stephanie reviewed the agenda for the meeting as well as the work group's action plan.

2. Presentation: United for Youth

Staff from Promises2Kids presented on United for Youth. This program is the result of a two-year think tank by Prebys on foster youth. The group included CFWB supervisors, staff, and lived experts. The result was a $5,000,000 request for proposal for community-based solutions. Prebys then asked the authors of three proposals to come up with one comprehensive program.

Currently, a former foster youth can receive food, clothing, housing, and other needs from a variety of providers however those programs are siloed and there is no overarching person to help youth navigate all the different providers.

United for Youth, funded by Lucky Duck Foundation, Prebys Foundation and David C. Copley Foundation, brings together 40 organizations. The coalition has three priorities: housing stability and homelessness prevention, employment and workforce development, and relational and community support. The coalition has a no wrong door policy and the Youth Assistance Coalition has a drop-in center for immediate assistance. The coalition will go for two years starting in November.

Current or former foster youth, ages 16-30 are eligible. There will be a screening tool used to identify needs and then referrals will happen. Right now, the coalition is working on resource identification, what resources are available and what is the eligibility for each. The goal is to have the web of services depicted.

3. Board of Supervisors 2026 Legislative Program

Torrey shared the twelve Legislative Program priorities that focused on child welfare.

4. Announcements

Promises2Kids is moving to a new location on January 5th, 2026. The new building will be under construction for a bit as they are modifying the building to accommodate expanded mental health services, and a childcare center for children of Guardian Scholars.

TREC (Trauma Resilient Educational Communities) has a free parent certification program.

The Children's Advocacy Institute at USD is hosting a drop-in legal clinic at Storefront.

Placement & Caregiver Support Work Group
Meeting Summary

Date: Thursday, November 20, 2025

Co-Chairs: Jeff Wiemann and Patty Boles

Meeting Staff: Torrey Giaquinta

Participants: 20, Board Members present: Beth Ploesch, Stephanie Ortega, Jovanna Aguilera, Jeff Wiemann, Patty Boles

1. Welcome and Introductions

Jeff opened the meeting and went over the agenda for the meeting.

2. Transitions Policy Draft

- Presentation Rachel Swaykos showed a draft of the transition plan form. Transition is defined as any move of a child from one caregiver to another. Which includes transitions to parents or relatives but not respite. In October of 2025, the California Legislature passed a bill requiring trauma informed transition plans. The work group had paused work on this action item until we had more information so we could ensure our plan was in alignment with any statutory requirements. After consultation with state and other counties, this plan was created. It has been reviewed by CFWB's lived expert group. Rachel did not go through every line of the form, instead she pointed out where trauma informed practices had been incorporated. As with any plan, the transition plan will be followed when safely possible. In emergency situations, a child would need to be moved immediately, irrespective of the transition plan.

Notice of change in placement

By law, caregivers are supposed to give fourteen days' notice that a change in placement is needed, CFWB can then set up a placement preservation CFT as well as come up with a transition plan. However, notice is not always given or appropriate to the circumstances.

CFT Meetings

Transition plans are created at CFT meetings. Transition plans ideally include transition visits which are purposeful planned visits with the new caregiver prior to transition into their care. Ideally, the old and new caregiver are able to attend a CFT together to plan for the transition

Transition Information Form

The Child Transition Information Form has existed for awhile but fell out of practice. Part of the transition plan will be for that form and the All About Me form to be completed a specified number of days prior to the transition. The Child Transition Information form was also displayed, that form includes youth's social interactions, activity levels, and personality traits. For children under age two, the form includes questions about formula brand, nap and feeding schedule, and morning and night schedules. For children of all ages, there are questions about their likes and dislikes (shows, people, locations), daily routine, sleeping issues, effective discipline methods and rewards systems, any talents or skills including extracurricular activities, rules around phone and technology use, comfort items, triggers, allergies, holidays and traditions, afterschool schedule, etc. For youth age fourteen or older, there is a section to note the ILS skills the youth has obtained (for example transportation or budgeting) and any employment. Their relationship with the biological family, siblings, or permanent connections is also include as well as the form of engagement.

Commonality of Need Assessment

All social workers with children in a home meet to conduct a Commonality of Need assessment. This assessment has typically been used when assessing STRTP placements but will now be used for community placements as well. In a Commonality of Need assessment, the social workers discuss the needs of each child in the home (dangerous propensity, functioning, in-home services) and whether those needs align with what the caretaker can provide.

There is also a Placement Needs and Services Plan, though this form fell out of practice, it includes a list of forms to attach and whether the family has a history of health problems, interpersonal violence, physical abuse, or mental health or substance use problems. The plan includes any court orders around visitation with parents or siblings and whether supervision is needed. The name of the child's medical doctor and dentist are included as are any medications, allergies, providers, and school contacts. The name of the education rights holder, and any IEP or school transcripts should also be included.

All of the information in these forms cannot be pulled from a database and need to be manually entered.

Transition and After

If the child or youth would like, they can participating in packing and completing the Clothing Inventory and Record of Personal Belongings form. The new caregiver is encouraged to complete a comfort call with the parents. Caregivers are given materials on why comfort calls are important and suggestions of topics to say or ask.

Court

When the transition plan is complete, it should be given to the Court, either through ex parte or at an upcoming hearing so that the court does not make orders that contradict the plan. At a meeting with the Court it came to light that the judges were not seeing attachments, this has been fixed. When submitting the transition plan to the court, it should be specified if there is a requested court order or if the plan is being submitted for information but not action. The submission will also note if there were any objections to the plan created at the CFT.

This plan should be finalized by Spring and will then be presented to the Juvenile Court.

- Discussion

- A question was asked if caregiver who routinely fail to give a fourteen day notice of a placement change are tracked in any way. Individual social workers may not be aware of a pattern. Attorneys or CASAs can let the RFA case manager know. Hopefully, this information will be easier to track in the new system.
- Lengthy respite stays may benefit from some of the transition practices.
- Consider including providers to the Commonality of Needs assessment as they may have specific knowledge about the child and home.
- There was a discussion on whether Placement Binders should follow a child from placement to placement. Some caregivers like to keep the binders to refer to in case allegations or questions arise at a later date..
- Caregivers should be asked if they would like ongoing contact with a child that is leaving their care, and if so, in what capacity.
- Caregivers should be encouraged to take photos of the child/youth as they may not have access to other childhood photos. There are some websites where the photos can be stored.
- There were questions about a foster parent or caregiver portal in the new CARES.
- A Board member reminded the work group that unless there is a court order blocking contact, a youth is allowed to contact anyone they want.

The person does not have to be approved or on a list.

- 3. Updates on Changes to CFWB Policy or Practice This agenda item was not addressed
- 4. Updates/Announcements Torrey shared a flyer regarding an upcoming training.

COUNTY OF SAN DIEGO
Child and Family Strengthening Advisory Board

Placement & Caregiver Support Work Group
Meeting Summary

Date: Thursday, December 18, 2025

Co-Chairs: Jeff Wiemann and Patty Boles

Meeting Staff: Torrey Giaquinta

Participants: 22, Board Members present: Beth Ploesch, Stephanie Ortega, Jovanna Aguilera, Jeff Wiemann, Patty Boles

1. Welcome and Introductions

2. Discussion on How Changes to CFWB Policy or Practice Should Be Communicated

Each of the 20 CFWB policy staff have areas of expertise. There is no law on how often policies need to be reviewed. Typically, policies are created or modified to meet newly passed legislation or due to a local court rule, lawsuit, or enhanced local practice. The goal is to read and revise policies every two years. Policies are prioritized based on whether there is a mandate for the policy, the amount of outside pressure, the significance of the changes, and the priorities of management.

To revise a policy, the draft first goes to an internal worker group, then analysis is done of the impact of the change on workers and caregivers, and the fiscal impact. Then there is stakeholder feedback, which includes this group. If the policy change is big enough, it may need leadership approval. Then the operations review committee and the Quality Improvement Analyst review the draft. This includes (bi)monthly open staff forums. This part takes about thirty days. Any proposed changes may go back to the invested teams to review. Then labor liaisons and unions have thirty days to review the policy. Then the policy is published. If a policy is known to address all caregivers, a letter with a copy of the policy and any related expectations and forms are sent through the mail. This process can take anywhere from six months to years. The more input into a policy, the longer it takes to finalize.

There is a procurement on BuyNet for a new policy system. CFWB has asked that the new system is searchable, user friendly, and has a public facing component. Participants suggested the new system include a subscribe option to be notified when new policies are added. Participants asked if they could be informed which policies are in the stakeholder feedback stage. There are 50-100 policies under revision at any time. Thought is going into a process that can keep people informed without bombarding them.

For policy needs you can contact: Rachel Swaykos (Rachel.swaykos2@sdcounty.ca.gov), Antonia Torres (Antonia.torres@sdcounty.ca.gov), Katherine Manno (Katherine.manno@sdcounty.ca.gov), or Stephanie Gross (Stephanie.gross@sdcounty.ca.gov). The resource parent/caregiver ombuds can be reached at CFWB.RPOMBUDS.HHSA@sdcounty.ca.gov or by calling 877-729-KIDS (5437) and choosing option 2. The general ombuds can be reached at 619-338-2098.

Problems or concerns should be addressed by the supervisors closest to the issue. Often Kim, Alfredo, or Aimee, get calls about problems. Participants asked for an updated organizational chart. Patty asked that supervisors be reminded that they can, and should, talk with parent mentors. Participants also mentioned that there is not necessarily an issue with the training, the disconnect could be with how that lesson is heard and understood by the worker.

One difficulty caregivers are facing include medical insurance being cut off; CFWB staff is aware and addressing.

In one case four hours of visitation was ordered on Christmas Eve. This will disrupt the caregiver's plans as she is the one transporting. Caregivers need to be able to be in court to be heard if the caregiver is going to be given orders that have not been discussed before court. CFWB reminded participants that the other parties, child's counsel or parent's counsel, can ask for visitation during the hearing. CFWB does not always know when this is going to happen. Technically, CFWB is the one ordered to make the visitation happen. CFWB staff are working on Christmas Eve. and can provide transportation if needed. The caregiver should talk with their worker. The goal is to provide youth in-care with a 'normal' experience which includes seeing family on holidays. Questions or concerns about visitation, should go to Diana Shreckengost, after people have tried to resolve with the closest supervisor.

Some medical providers, specifically ones in East County have been asking social workers to conduct additional body checks of children in care prior to any appointment. This is not in alignment with County policy. CFWB is working with County Counsel on the messaging to social workers informing them of existing policy. There are certain conditions when a body check is allowed but caregivers must be informed. When practice is not being followed in a specific area, a policy analyst can go to that branch to train staff. CFWB staff reminded us that it has not been that long since there has been a unified system.

There were questions about how to get court orders to resource parents. Additionally, any child over the age of ten is required to get a copy of the minute order.
