

Health Care FSA/HRA

Carryover up to $550

Don't lose it! Carryover up to $550!

That's right! No more use it or lose it! You can carryover up to $550 of unused contributions into the following plan year! The health care flexible spending account (FSA) plan and health reimbursement account (HRA) includes a provision that will allow participants to rollover a combined amount up to $550 of unused FSA/HRA into the following plan year.

How does it work?

Assume you contributed $2,000 into your HCFSA. But, you only spent $1,450 during the plan year. You can carry over the remaining $550 into the next plan year! The $550 carryover amount is in addition to your employer plan limit. For example, if your employer plan limit is $2,750, you can carry over up to $550 of unused funds for a total of $3,300.

What else should I know?

- ◆ You earn valuable tax savings by paying for recurring and predictable expenses with pretax dollars.
- ◆ By paying pretax, you do not pay federal or state tax (in most cases), or FICA tax. Most employees save at least 30% by paying pretax.
- ◆ If you have an HSA you cannot make contributions if you are enrolled in a general-purpose health care FSA. Contact your HSA custodian bank for more information. Your employer may allow you to convert carryover funds to a limited-purpose health care FSA or forfeit the FSA carryover funds if you wish to contribute to an HSA. Each plan is different so please confirm with your employer.
