Can we have multiple logins for our company's account?

Yes! You may have multiple logins for a single account, so there is no need to share emails or passwords. Only the first person needs to complete the registration process. All other users may be added to the account as a contact.

I added a new contact (login) to our account, but the individual never received the email to set their password.

After adding a new contact to your account, click on the envelope icon next to the individual's name to send the email that will enable the user to set their password.
