2. What experience do you possess that demonstrates an ability to be impartial?

Experience as a senior executive (VP) at Neustar and Claritas and time as an Assistant Professor of Economics at Claremont McKenna College demonstrate my ability to be impartial. At Neustar/Claritas I set strategy for and managed a large diverse organization accountable for millions of dollars in revenue, services, and products. Success in this leadership role required vision and impartiality in decision making. Hard choices had to be made. Organizational buy-in only happened if all parties felt their views were taken seriously and with equal weight. Being viewed as an impartial decision maker greatly improved my ability to effectively lead the organization.

You are encouraged to limit your response to one page, however if more space is needed, you may attach an additional page.

3. What experience do you possess that demonstrates an appreciation for the diverse demographics and geography of the County of San Diego?

My appreciation for San Diego's unique demographic and geographic character comes from both professional experience and firsthand knowledge as a 20+ year resident. Over the past 20+ years I have raised a family and actively supported my community. That included involvement in various youth organizations and volunteering to help families needing assistance. Through this I worked regularly with people and families from a broad range of demographic and economic backgrounds and places. This experience shaped my appreciation for the rich character and culture of our county. Professionally, I have studied demographic differences across many places in San Diego and how those shape neighborhoods and consumer behaviors. These observed differences have been further reinforced through comparisons and studies with other areas across the US.

You are encouraged to limit your response to one page, however if more space is needed, you may attach an additional page.
