I have lived in Jamul 43 years and know the South Bay and Jamul well. Anyone can visit and see the difference..it is in the country, the environment is dramatically different..the people, values, and community. Jamul aligns better with areas such as Crest, Alpine, Ramona.

It is illogical to group it with city/ suburbs. It always bothers me that no one downtown should have a vote about the country, they do not know what it is like dealing with commutes, wildlife, etc.. such as we have no ideas about living in high rises. This alignment should be for the people's best interest not a political game. Please do what is right for the areas with less population.
