	I find Draft Map 11 to be the most pragmatic of the submissions I've seen thus far. I live in Valley Center (Unincorporated San Diego County) and own a business in San Marcos. My children attend school in Escondido. We previously lived in Del Mar. My experience living and working in these communities, has shown many of the citizens of these areas share mindsets and community goals, so should be represented together. I will concede that the coastal areas can vary significantly from city to city with regard to political mindsets. However, in general I find "North County" including coastal north county have different community needs than that of the dense cities found in the southern areas of SD County. As a "rural" citizen I also feel it is essential that our communities are represented in conjunction with larger incorporated cities of SD County, so our needs are legitimately heard and we have fair representation.
