I am from (Jamul/Rancho San Diego) and I see that different versions of the map exclude or have excluded us and El Cajon from where we belong within East County boundaries. Rancho San Diego, Jamul, El Cajon, and Spring Valley need to stay together with all other East County communities. All have been impacted by fire and share a common interest of fire protection. We also share the same rural, business, agricultural and equestrian interests, land use and open space interests. We don't belong with South Bay, Chula Vista or any other area.

I have lived here my whole life and identify very heavily with my current County Supervisor and my community. Please reconsider the boundaries.
