I have lived in San Diego for over 35 years, the distinct lines are not a tool to manipulate the peoples voice. You always have to ask your self what is the motive behind the action. Take a close look and who gains from this the people who live there? No the people who want control are the only ones to win here. They will say its in the name of fairness, equality, its not its in the name of them getting control for their own selfish needs, their agenda. Its time to listen to the people that matter the residents of San Diego County, and do the right thing.
