I live in Sunset Cliffs. I recommend that in the redistricting process that coastal communities be put together. My neighbors and I often find that our concerns that are related to living along the coast are not understood by our inland neighbors. Coastal communities deal with ocean water quality issues, storm drain issues, urban runoff, beach trash and debris, etc. Coastal communities have many more short-term rentals per capita than inland areas and more tourists on a daily basis.

We need our elected representatives to focus on coastal issues and if their district has more people living along the coast, they are more likely to represent the specific issues of people living along the coast.
