Redrawing districts in San Diego County must require consideration not only of the unique terrain with differing ecological needs, but also the unique and specific needs of those most underrepresented. Encompassing the entire San Diego coastline within District 1 from Encinitas to Coronado prioritizes the critical exigency of addressing pollution, erosion, sea-level rise, loss of biodiversity, and more. Our region is dependent on interconnected coastal communities working synergistically to aggressively address climate change and maintain a healthy ecosystem. District 4 should be redrawn to respect the integrity of communities with similar interests while providing for equitable opportunities to participate in decision-making and the political process.

CORRECTION - Please insert District 3 for District 1 in my original comment. Corrected as follows:
Redrawing districts in San Diego County must require consideration not only of the unique terrain with differing ecological needs, but also the unique and specific needs of those most underrepresented. Encompassing the entire San Diego coastline within District 3 from Encinitas to Coronado prioritizes the critical exigency of addressing pollution, erosion, sea-level rise, loss of biodiversity, and more. Our region is dependent on interconnected coastal communities working synergistically to aggressively address climate change and maintain a healthy ecosystem. District 4 should be redrawn to respect the integrity of communities with similar interests while prioritizing equitable opportunities to participate in decision-making and the political process.
